"The team at the BusinessMedia Center has been amazing to work with from day one. This commitment to defining and achieving a shared goal is extraordinary. I cannot imagine having a more positive experience working with a university organization. The staff at the BusinessMedia Center truly exemplifies the finest qualities I associate with teamwork – hard work, common goals, commitment to success, and a shared willingness to be flexible and adaptable while always looking for the best way to get the job done. In addition to extraordinary efficiency, knowledge and skill, they are also just plain fun to work with. Not only am I grateful to work with the BMC, I feel it is a privilege," said John Farrell, founder of Bridges of Peace and Hope.

John Farrell – musician, songwriter, performer, and educator – is the founder of Bridges of Peace and Hope. Along with him, the BMC has helped this nonprofit organization of teachers, students, and friends work together on creative, educational projects that promote world peace and understanding among people of all cultures and backgrounds.
